Graduation Week

Graduation week has come and gone but memories linger. No words could express these memories, for each member of the class has his own personal thoughts about this special event. Rather than attempting to put into words these many wonderful memories, we hope that the following pictures will call to mind the fun and meaning of Senior's Last Assembly, Senior Banquet, Class Night, and ultimately, Graduation Night.

As The

Twig Bends . . .

So Grows The Tree

Upon graduating from high school, our life-patterns must be on the way to establishment, our ideals and goals to formulation. For after high school we spend most of our time being part of the world; as there is little time left to determine our places in the world, we must go on to fulfill the places we have made for ourselves during our youth.

In our society, formal education is the greatest single source of our growth. And it is in high school—when we are at our most formative age—that our growth is most effected. This Marsengold of 1963 is the record of the opportunities we, the members of the class of '63, have had and have taken towards growing into complete and useful members of our society.

Dedication . . .

Mr. Herman H. Richardson

At this time of our graduation we have thirteen years of education to evaluate; we have to consider the influence of those years on each of us and the contribution our class has made to its school. We call to mind the experiences and, above all, the people who have given the past years meaning for us, and who have helped us to leave a part of ourselves behind.

Probably no single person has had a greater effect on our class than Mr. Herman H Richardson.

Mr. Richardson has the same thirteen years to review, for he began his career as Superintendent of Schools in Sharon when our class was entering kindergarten, and will be leaving shortly after we do. Over these thirteen years Mr. Richardson has seen Sharon's educational system expand vastly in numbers. Not only because of his position, but because of his unbounded dedication to his position, has he been instrumental in an equally vast expansion of quality. And although he has had no direct ties with any one class, Mr. Richardson has displayed, throughout the years, a genuine interest in each of us.

For these reasons we, the members of the class of '63, dedicate our yearbook to Mr. Herman H. Richardson, and take this opportunity to wish him success in his future endeavors.

Dear Mrs. Rivkin and Mr. Marcus,

At this time of graduation and of commencement, as we consider the causes as well as the effects of our development, we, the members of the class of 1963, must seriously consider and pay tribute to you, our class advisors over the past four years.

As the pages of this book attest, our high school years have had probably the greatest effect of any on our growth as individuals and as a group -- and the success of our high school career was possible only because of the guidance which we have received, and which you epitomize. You have helped us through planning board meetings, class dances, elections, our prom, and graduation plans -- helped us with advice and examples that allowed us not only to be successful, but also to learn the meaning of responsibility.

For these things separately, and for the total effect they have had on our class, we offer you our sincere thanks.

Sincerely yours,

Ann Becker

Dear Members of the Class of 1963,

It seems like only yesterday when you entered the freshman class at the Sharon High School back in September, 1959. How well we remember the very first class meeting and all the others that followed! You emitted such enthusiasm and excitement! We recall your freshman dance, the sophomore hop, the senior dance, and most vividly, and above all, that very fine junior prom you will long remember.

It is indeed a real pleasure to have been your advisors over these last four years. You have always been most willing to accept advice and you have been most co-operative in your class activities. Truly, it has been a delight to have known and to have worked with you.

After graduation each of you will be pursuing your individual interests. Some will be going off to college; others will enter the business world; still others will go into the armed forces. Whatever walk of life you choose, we sincerely wish you good health, much happiness, and complete fulfillment.

Sincerely yours,

Ruth L Rivkin

Guidance

Mr. Dowd and Mr. Roman, Mr. Barrows, Miss Haley, and Mr. Nathanson, and the members of our faculty will always be remembered—beyond their official capacities—as vital and sincere participants in these singularly important years of our academic and character development.

Each graduate leaves high school with his goals and principles well formulated—ready to apply them to life-long patterns. And each of the men and women cited above, rather than remaining within the bounds of official duty, chose to help us grow—to advise, to guide, to set a fine example.

Therefore, we the members of the class of 1963, wish to acknowledge a debt of gratitude to our administration and faculty at Sharon High School.

English Department

To accomplish its goals for the Sharon students, the English Department uses a carefully developed sequential curriculum. In terms of literary creation, emphasis is placed in the first years on the form of expression, then in the junior and senior years, on the use of this form as a vehicle for expression of idea. Weekly themes and the senior thematic reading units implement these objectives. In literary reception, as a basis for creation, the curriculum proceeds on four yearly units: general literature, American literature, English literature, and a senior four part study of drama, poetry, the short story and the essay.

To develop this curriculum the English Department employs many distinctive methods. The Sharon Plan group lectures to Freshmen, the Professor Peterson films, the television humanities series, group attendance of local appearances of famous poets, all serve to enrich and supplement the English program. This year has seen the first use of the overhead projector as a significant teaching device, and the introduction of a different approach to English grammar—"transformational grammar," which studies the living language scientifically on the basis of the classification of sentences according to ten fundamental types.

Mr. Blake gives some individuol advice to Susan Flynn. "Hm, o three letter word beginning with 'w'. Thot's a toughy . . ."

Miss Haynes explains o point to her juniors.
"No, Macbeth is no relation to Moc the Knife."

Sharon Keeps Latin

LATIN

Enrolment in Latin has increased in recent years proportionately even more rapidly than the school enrolment. This year there are five classes in Latin I, four in Latin II, and the largest class in Latin III-IV in the history of the school.

No longer do assignments consist merely of routine grammar, vocabulary drill, and translation but readings in related fields, projects of various types, and individual reports are suggested and required. Latin is one of the great languages of the world, possessing an important literature, and the reading program is planned to give an acquaintance with authors other than Caesar, Cicero, and Vergil. The influence of Roman civilization upon modern life is constantly stressed, especially in the areas of government and language.

Miss Chase and Mr. Foley share the responsibility for keeping Latin a vital, absorbing subject.

Vital—Strengthens French

FRENCH

Our modern foreign language program has continued to grow in scope as well as in size with the introduction this year of French IV, a survey course in French literature and a review of grammar, and the adoption on the ninth grade level of an oral approach to French, via the direct method. This is a new method as it enables students to speak French at once, leaving vocabulary and grammar to functional representation in conversations, and in complete idiomatic thoughts, rather than in grammatical unit divisions. Because of the increased enrollment, Mrs. Greene has joined Miss Newton and Mr. Chappuis, teaching two classes in the senior high school together with several at the junior high.

Of The World We Live In

HISTORY AND SOCIAL STUDIES

Sharon High School has a creditable four year History and Social Studies program. Instruction includes duties as well as privileges. Thus we have freedom of religion and of the press, but also the need for constructive citizenship, responsibility to "run for" not always "from" public office, and the accountability to defend the Republic.

Some fields of study stress practical and terminal pursuits while others emphasize the scholarly and continuing features of formal education. While all courses are sound and enduring, yet they are coupled with ideas and methods both flexible and reasonable in innovations.

Our program includes:

Civics—stressing citizenship of school class, community, commonwealth and country;

Ancient History—from Archaeology to Zoroaster.

Economic Geography—as Ankara to the Yahi River.

Modern History—Alsace and Lorraine to the Voice of America.

Problems of Democracy—the individual, town meeting and the world.

Stephen Leacock, the political scientist and novelist, once said, "I am a great believer in luck, and I find the harder I work the more I have of it."

In the sum and substance of worthwhile living, this kind of "luck" is significant.

MATH DEPARTMENT

The Sharon High School Mathematics Department teaches the best of traditional and modern mathematical concepts in order, generally, to enrich the background of the student and, in the case of the college preparatory student, to prepare him for future courses on a post high school level. The program is constructed with many sources from the field of mathematical education as bases. The courses range from Business Mathematics through Elementary and Advanced Algebra, to Calculus and Analytical Geometry — a fifth course in the college preparatory program offered for the first time this year.

It can certainly be said that Sharon provides a more than adequate mathematics program which allows both the terminating and preparatory student every opportunity to develop his capacity and interest to the utmost.

The courses range . . . through Advanced Algebra, as these juniors can attest.
"My, what a nice equation!"

Desired Level At Sharon High

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

The Science Department at Sharon High School offers a diversified program designed to meet the varied interests of all the students.

The physical sciences include Science I and II, a two-year unified college-preparatory physics and chemistry course, Chemistry, Physical Science, and General Science.

Those interested in the natural sciences have a choice of Biology, General Biology, and General Physiology and Hygiene.

For those who want advanced studies, the department offers Science III, an advanced physics course, offered for the first time this year, and Advanced Biology, a course only two years old.

It is hoped that the facts and concepts learned in each and every science program will lead the participant to some understanding of the "what's" "how's" and "why's" of our universe. Beyond this, it is hoped that he will gain the initiative to inquire more deeply into what he does know and beyond to that which he does not yet know, either along the lines of the program he has been pursuing or in some adjacent field of science.

The purpose of the entire science curriculum, then, is to give the student a greater appreciation and understanding of himself and of the physical world around him.

Developing Modern Business . . .

Mr. Joseph W. Corteau
Commercial Subjects
B.S. Ed., Salem Teachers College; Track coach; Sharon Faculty: 9 years.

A business math student may use his knowledge . . . to enter the business world . . .
"Deposits here, withdrawls . . ."

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Our commercial program serves to apply knowledge on practical levels—to establish basic patterns in business learning. The program is further geared to vocational competence through skill development.

A business math student may use his knowledge of basic arithmetic as it applies to business transactions, to enter the business world or go on to further training in a field such as accounting. With the solid background Sharon offers in typewriting and stenography, a student may develop the proficiency to be highly successful at secretarial work—and, with bookkeeping and office practice, at a broader scope of office work. The home economics department prepares its girls for such things as dietary work, sewing, designing and homemaking.

A commercial student graduates from Sharon High's program with the knowledge and skill to become a productive member of our society.

The home-economics department prepares its girls for . . . homemaking.

With the background Sharon offers . . . a student may . . . be highly successful at secretarial work . . .

"All together, now, 1-2-3 . . ."

. . . And Industrial Skills

Mr. William J. Konsavage
Industrial Arts and Mechanical Drawing
B.S. Ed., Fitchburg Teachers College; M.Ed., Boston University; Sharon Faculty: 21 years.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The courses offered in the line of industrial arts are also geared to vocational competence through skill development. The boys involved develop their skills in such fields as metalwork, woodworking, and mechanical drawing.

Keeping in mind that "practice makes perfect," Mr. Konsavage keeps the boys busy at practical projects in their lines of interest, and is prepared to help them improve their work and go on to progressively more difficult projects. Over the years the boys have completed projects from stools all the way up to "hi fi's" in the shop, have developed skill in proportion to their efforts in mechanical drawing, too, and have learned shop mathemtics to round out their education.

Our industrial arts boys emerge from their training prepared to pursue productive careers as engineers, draftsmen, carpenters, and architects.

Mr. Konsavage keeps his boys busy.
.. . at practical projects.

Physical Education Classes Stress Physical Fitness

Miss Carol Ann Mueller
Physical Education
B.S. Ed., Bridgewater Teachers College; Girls Varsity Club, Girls Gymnastic Club Advisor; Sharon Faculty: 2 Years.

Mr. Gary W. Hall
Physical Education
B.S., Ithaca College; M.Ed., Boston University; Athletic Director; Boys Varsity Club advisor; Sharon Faculty: 9 years.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The Girls' and Boys' Physical Education programs offer active participation and instruction in a well-rounded program of physical development and recreational activities. Emphasis is placed on physical fitness, fundamentals and rules of sports, teamwork, proper attitudes, and respect for others. The class program, then, includes: the development of skills; a physical fitness program; individual development.

The program aims to develop an interest in activities which will provide leisure time pursuits for girls and boys now, as well as after graduation from high school. It also aims to provide the less highly-skilled performer with the opportunity to experience some of the satisfactions which too frequently are known only to those who participate in interscholastic sports.

Intramural sports constitute an extension of the physical education program and opportunity is provided for voluntary participation in individual and team activities.

The class program includes the development of skills . . .
"Training for the Olympics?"

. . . and a physical fitness program.
"Behind every curve is a muscle."

Behind the Scenes . . .

. . . the secretarial staff works constantly to keep our school running smoothly — Mrs. Huckins (left) as affice secretary, Mrs. Leventhal (center) as guidance secretary, and Mrs. Bernstein (right) as clerical assistant — each af them always ready ta lend a willing ear or helping hand.

. . . the kitchen staff, under Mrs. Clapp's dietary-conscious eye, provides us with plenty af good, "well-balanced" meals at lunch time. (left to right: Mrs. Haines, Mrs. Watts, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Stryer, Mrs. Burgess, Mrs. Liberman, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Clapp.)

. . . and we, the members af the class af '63, are grateful ta these people behind the scenes for rounding aut our lives in the place where we spend so many of our waking hours.

By the time a group of students becomes a senior class, with its own officers, advisors and functions, and with the closeness born of "growing up" together, it is in a very real sense a unit unto itself.

The members of the class of 1963, have gone together through annexes, field days, science fairs, term papers, a junior prom, and all the other steps intermediate to the first day of kindergarten and graduation exercises. We have developed close ties among ourselves and, together, with people outside of our class—teachers, coaches, administrators. As we approached our senior year we began accepting the responsibilities that come with being leaders of the school, as well as those of being one class in the group of four whose inter-relation makes the word "school" meaningful.

Now, as we enter the alumni ranks, we must look back wistfully at the friends and memories which the years after graduation will see replaced with others. But as we begin applying what we have learned from one another and from high school, we can also look back to these years with pride in our accomplishments and in having been a part of Sharon High School.

Prelude To '63

Some of us were lucky enough to have been born in Sharon, while

. . . others arrived at a tender age.

Still others arrived much later. Some left, and some of these saw the light and returned. At any rate, all were welcome.

We went to nursery school at Mrs. Glover's and Mrs. Curtis'. (Sleeping in school was permissible then.) Next we all got together at School Street School for kindergarten. But soon they separated us.

Some went to brand new Cottage Street . . .

. . . some to Pleasant Street and half sessions. (We had half sessions, too, in High Street by the library.)

A new school was built, the Heights Elementary. We separated still further.

Part of the money we earned in the magazine drive went to buy sweaters for our big band.

And then, Orientation Day, junior high, and we were all together; we began life as a class. We rang doorbells madly to sell magazines and scrambled over fifty different prizes—but most important of all was—"Which class is on top?"

We bounced balls off the ivy-covered walls, ran merrily up and down the wrong way on one way stairs. We sang, we drew, we adjusted ourselves in Core. Some of us wrote a book for Miss Flemings.

There was a play that those who saw will never forget.

We marched to the playground for field day.

There were assemblies once a week (with feature-length movies twice a year). We got to know people we'd not known before—and we became best of friends. We elected class officers and a student council. We were a class now—the Class of '63.

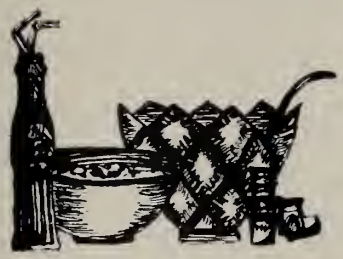
Things picked up socially, too. P. T. A. dance classes had started in the sixth grade. Now we put our lessons to use.

Our class dances began. We started characteristically with a big success—Twilight Time.

In the eighth grade we turned Hawaiian, leis and all, with Hawaiian Wedding Song.

And the "Shytones" provided us with meladic entertainment.

THEN THERE WERE THE PARTIES WHERE



. . . the girls got together.

. . . ond the boys got together.

. . . then they oll got together.

. . . with somebody always on hond to stop things before they went too for!

In the eighth grade we were upperclassmen already—but we graduated quickly, with a yearbook from the "Tide," not much fanfare, and any regrets overwhelmed by expectations—of Sharon High School.

We continued our social activities while in Sharon High; in fact they reached new heights.

There were the dances—and the clean-up crews afterward. The clean-up gang for the Mad Dance was suitably mad, of course.

AND THERE WERE MORE PARTIES

. . . as this one, in our freshman year, where the girls protested sloppy boys' dress by wearing ties and old shirts.

However, the girls weren't averse to being sloppy themselves at times. Witness this casual conclave for all the girls in the class at the end of our sophomore year.

The girls went even further than this, in fact — much further. They reached the ultimate in party attire — the pajama.

As to the other aspects of high school life: first we were freshmen. Oh, well. It's something every class has to go through. And we did it admirably—surviving term papers, tests and taunts. We got used to squeezing ourselves through corridors rather than running down stairs. We joined the many clubs and rose quickly to positions of activity and responsibility. The athletic teams, too, benefited from the presence of our class, both as players and spectators. Who can forget the day we invaded Boston Garden to urge the "Eagles" on? Pep rallies brought the whole school together—with our class leading the cheers, of course.

As our class advanced, we received more responsibility. In addition to our regular dances—Lavendar Blue, Campaign Capers, Stag-not-Drag, and the Rebel Hop—we produced the beautiful Misty, our junior prom. That year, too, members of our class represented the school on Town Government Day, and at Boys' and Girls' State.

The senior play "Time out for Ginger" was an unbelievably professional performance, and a tremendous success. To our class as seniors also fell the responsibility for the Marsengold. And, of course, we had to prepare for our final activity—graduation.

We worked hard—in class and in everything we did.

We played hard, too.

And we did things together; the girls, for example, moved closer to each other in Senior Sorority—despite the ban on band-aids.

The result of all this was ultimately the formation of a class, with a character and personality of its own; a class of accomplishment, and of eminence; a class which achieved, and which excelled; a class which was one of the finest ever to attend Sharon High School, so because of its members, but above all because the Class of 1963 was willing to work and strive, separately and together, to take advantage of that school, and thus to make our history at Sharon High, one to make us justly proud.

JUNIOR PROM . . .

Look at me . . .

The weeks before the prom were filled with anxiety. Would the mural ever be finished?. . . Would the silhouettes look all right? . . . Would we ever get that three-tiered wishing fountain?

As prom night drew closer and closer, everyone became more and more excited. This was to be our junior prom, MISTY. All of a sudden it was Thursday, May 10, and we rehearsed the Grand March. Then it was Friday . . . the gym had been transformed into a romantic ballroom; the prom began.

And the band played on dreamily, as a truly enchanted and "misty" evening went on.

. . . I'm as helpless as a kitten up a tree,
And I feel like I'm clinging to a cloud . . .

We Got

. . . I can't understand—I get misty just holding your hand . . .

. . . Walk my way, and a thousand violins begin to play, . . . Or it might be the sound of your hello, that music I hear . . .

. . . You can say that you're leading me on, but it's just what I want you to do—don't you notice how hopelessly I'm lost, That is why I'm following you . . .

Misty The Moment We Were There

Look at me.

. . . On my own would I wander through this wonderland alone,
Never knowing my right foot from my left, my hat from my glove . . .

"Oh, now I see where this is leading. Girls are forced to campete and take exercise forty-five minutes, twice a week and boys come to regard them as physical equals."

"Well, I didn't mean to make an issue out of it."

"My daughter! . . . They're yelling, 'It's her! It's her.'"

"But you're a girl!"

"And we, as liberty-loving peaple, must seek out the evil, never retreat from the heat of battle and . . ."

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

"It says, 'The new laak in faatball.' "

"It's a wanderful picture af Virginia."

"It's been my experience that in dealing with peaple like yau, the parent is as much at fault as the child." "Sa, 'Don't Whine!' "

"Don't Whine!" "She scored a touchdown!" "Welcome home, son!"

These lines were part of the class of 1963's presentation of "Time Out For Ginger," put on under the direction of Mr. Newton. But they represent only one phase of the entire production: acting. Sets also had to be painted, scenery to be secured and set up; costumes and properties to be gathered, make-up to be applied; posters to be distributed; programs and tickets to be ordered and distributed. In addition, the prompters and student director had to attend to all their duties. It was the willingness of everyone to co-operate in getting everything done that brought all the parts together to form a whole and make "Time Out For Ginger" the great success that it was.

Throughout the school year, the undergraduates have done a fine job of upholding the standards of Sharon High. Scholastically they have added large numbers to our honor roll and have scored well on nation-wide examinations. Their contributions to our extracurricular activities—from dramatics to basketball—have been valuable. All this has been accomplished with character and school spirit which is commendable.

Thus, as we leave the freshmen no longer at the bottom, the sophomores entering their most exciting year, and the juniors to assume the role of school leadership, we know that our school will continue to grow in the right direction, for its classes are developing in the right direction.

The juniors had, this year, perhaps their most exciting, most challenging, most important year at Sharon High School.

This was "their" social year—for theirs were the dances that opened and closed the High School's social year—"Summer Souvenirs" in September and their prom "Carousel" in May. And, this was the year, too, when school really got "tough"—when trigonometry, French III, chemistry, and stenography II became the order of the day and it was buckle down or buckle under.

Most important of all, this was "the year" as far as colleges and commercial schools will be concerned—and the futures of most of the individuals of this class will be much affected by what they did this year—by the grades they earned, by the aptitude tests they took, by the PSAT's and College Board Exams they braved, and by the general impression they left of themselves—as far as we're concerned a fine one!

The sophomore class has clearly made a name for itself in all around participation in school activities. Already, many of its members have become leaders and have made a great contribution to interscholastic and intramural sports. To their sports skill and leadership they have added outstanding scholastic ability, co-operation and enthusiasm. For their social highlight of the year, the annual sophomore hop, the students chose the theme "Winter Wonderland," with clever implementation. Due to the fine and hard working members of the class, this affair was a huge success.

The class of 1965 has certainly made a significant place for itself in the life of Sharon High School.

Again this year the freshmen have taken their place as the largest class in the school. The class of 1966 has added its ability and school spirit to every phase of school life. The freshmen's scholastic achievement has been high as evidenced by the length of their honor roll. They have participated widely in sports, particularly soccer and basketball. Their freshman dance was very successful, thus showing their ability to work together.

Certainly this class promises to be a great asset to Sharon High School.

In order to assume successful roles as adults, we need to grow not only in respect to our mental prowess, but also in respect to character. Character involves the ability to work and live together with others, to develop our interests and skills, to serve something greater than ourselves, and to employ self discipline.

It is through our participation in activities that we develop character traits. With a wealth of activities to choose from at Sharon High, we certainly can develop individual interests; within any activity we can learn the remaining character traits. Every experience—be it in dramatics or newspaper work or anything else—involving more than one person allows us to learn to work together; respecting others' needs and desires teaches us to employ self discipline. And whatever activity we choose to join in Sharon High, we are serving that cause greater than ourselves—in this case, the school to which we owe so much.

Effective Liaison Between Students And Administration

We at Sharon High are proud of our student council as an effective liaison between the student body and the administration. Through contact with other councils—with our own Charlie Powell as president, this past year, of the Southeastern Massachusetts Federation of Associated Bodies of Student Councils—and reliance on precedence in Sharon, the council members have maintained and initiated many of the things that add comfort to school life.

The supply store, manned every morning by council members, was moved this year to wing three for our convenience.

The Council's suggestion box system, as it continued to afford action on students' grievances and suggestions. . .

. . . was the bosis of the rule, new this year, that oll varsity ployers are exempt from gym classes while their sports are in season.

For these and other services—as the necessary over-haul of the honor pass system, the distribution of identification cards, the scheduling of student greeters—we owe a debt of gratitude to our council, particularly to Mr. Liberman, faculty advisor, and a promise to ourselves to continue electing and supporting such fine representatives.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

In March of 1937, Sharon High became a member of the National Honor Society. Since that time hundreds of members have been chosen for their outstanding qualities in character, scholarship, leadership and service.

This year, under the guidance of Mr. Barrows, the chapter's advisor, the Society continued to present awards for the different qualities of which it is representative, to underclassmen. A tutorial service was invoked this year and funds raised for contribution to the Student Activities Scholarship Fund.

DRAMATICS CLUB'S . . .

This year's Dramatics Club boasted of one of the largest memberships of the clubs at Sharon High. With Mr. Newton and Miss Sanford advising, the club enabled its members to gain experience in any and all of the fields of drama—acting, directing, make-up, prompting, costuming, scenery, and lighting.

Aside from producing plays for assemblies —remember "Antic Spring?" — and putting on a spring production, the Dramatics Club participated in the annual Massachusetts Drama Festival. Each spring high schools all over the state compete by districts with plays of no more than forty minutes, and without the benefit of scenery, for the chance to compete, on a state-wide level, for top honors at John Hancock Hall, and eventually on an inter-state level.

Through such projects every member of the Dramatics Club works toward Thespian Society membership, which is based on ten points to be earned in any of the fields of drama in one year or over a period of years. Sharon's Society increased its membership so substantially over the past year, that it has high hopes of becoming very active, and, as a matter of fact, put on its first public performance this year.

The Debating Club, since its inception in 1956, has seen tremendous growth both in size and stature. Its fine accomplishments have brought to Sharon one of six Massachusetts chapters of the National Forensic League, a debating and speech honor society.

This year, with greater club and Forensic League membership than ever before, the group has participated in numerous forensic tournaments and individual debates throughout New England. The twelve-man varsity team, backed up by a large group of intermediate and novice debaters, has met with tremendous success in nearly every match, debating the pros and cons of reciprocal free trade and a Western Hemisphere Common Market.

Eagle Staff Learns Mechanics of Good

A monthly edition of the Eagle was produced this year, under Co-Editors-in-Chief Diane Namyet and Stephi Aines, recording school activities. The largest Eagle staff ever—about 80 students in all—met with the editorial staff once or twice each month for the business of assigning and collecting general news, sports, and feature articles. Formal typing and circulation staffs were organized for the first time in recent years. The typing staff played a vital part in the production of a number of mimeographed issues — issues which were run off by the editorial staff.

Apart from its regular monthly productions, the Eagle staff presented its annual dance—this year "Oldies But Goodies"—for the benefit of the student activities scholarship fund. Too, the editors participated in several Boston Globe press conferences and wrote a number of articles for the Globe.

The Eagle took on a new look in its last few editions as it converted to lithography. Its future looks bright!

Foreign Language Study Increases World Awareness

FRENCH CLUB

"Est-il animal, legume, ou mineral?"

That is a question often heard when the French Club enjoys the common American game of Twenty Questions—but in French. The club members play other games such as Scrabble and Hangman—again in French. Aside from these games, the members hear lectures and see slides concerning France at their bi-monthly meetings.

During the past year, the members of the French Club wrote to France for pen-pals, with whom they are now corresponding. The high point of the year's activities was the afternoon spent at a French movie followed by dinner at a French restaurant.

JUNIOR CLASSICAL LEAGUE

Each spring, everyone eagerly anticipates the annual slave auction sponsored by the Junior Classical League. The proceeds of this event go to the scholarship fund. And this year, for the first time, the club also sponsored a Roman Banquet—all "guests" came in costume.

At the bi-monthly meetings, the Junior Classical League members see slides of the ruins of what was once Ancinet Rome, hear lectures concerning the extension of the Latin language and the spread of the Roman civilization, discuss such topics as mythology, and, most enjoyable of all—play Roman games.

. . . Sparks Spectator Spirits

This year, as in the past, the Sharon High School band has contributed to school spirit, playing at such occasions as the Friday morning assemblies for the entrance of the seniors, and at our traditional sports rallies. With rehearsals on Friday morning and Wednesday afternoon, the band members, under the direction of Mr. Philip Hoffman, have demonstrated their ability by mastering such pieces as "West Side Story," "Great Gate of Kiev," numerous Sousa marches, and the ever-popular "Copa Cabana". The band is proud to have among its members a group chosen for the annual Southeastern District Festival and the Southeastern Massachusetts Student Bandmasters' Association.

ORCHESTRA Captivates Critical Audiences

Our orchestra at Sharon High, led by Mr. Hoffman, meets once a week to give those students who enjoy playing orchestral music the opportunity to do so in an instructive, informal atmosphere. Performing such pieces as Corelli's "Adagio and Allegro," the orchestra joins forces with the Sharon Junior High School Orchestra in staging an annual spring program.

The orchestra represented Sharon at the Southeasern Massachusetts Music Festival, and at the state and all-New England festivals.

CHORUS

The Glee Club and Chorus at Sharon High have improved in size and importance this year. Mrs. Hughes, in her second year at Sharon, has worked diligently and enthusiastically with these vocal groups. The clubs meet regularly during Friday morning lab period to learn new songs and improve old ones in preparation for performances at assemblies. The Glee Club this year has succeeded in recruiting more boys—thus improving its overall effect. Several outstanding members of the clubs were chosen for the District Chorus for 1963, as well as for the S. E. M. S. B. A. chorus.

At weekly reheorsol, "All together now: four, five, six."

FUTURE TEACHERS Work Toward Goal In Many Ways

Sharon High is proud of its Anne Sullivan Chapter of the Future Teachers of America. Under the leadership of Mrs. Lothrop, the club has developed a varied program to meet the needs of all the members. Students observe teaching techniques at the elementary school level, serve as substitute teachers, and present individual research work on such topics as salaries and job opportunities. In these ways, the F.T.A. members strive to reach their goal—teaching in America.

Under the direction of Miss Clark, the Library Club carries out the behind-the-scenes jobs necessary to provide good library facilities for the students of Sharon High. Each member sets aside one or two study periods a week to work at collecting and delivering passes, checking in and shelving books, and taking care of any new library materials which may have arrived. Not only are the library aids providing service to the school, but they are gaining valuable experience for college or career opportunities.

JR. RED CROSS Contributes to Humanitarian Cause

This year our chapter of the Jr. Red Cross Club, under the direction of Miss Chase, has, as in previous years, contributed a great deal to the humanitarian cause. Among its many activities were the preparation of gift boxes at Christmas, the dressing of dolls for hospital distribution, and the organization of a school drive which filled three school chests. The club also sponsored a volunteer service, its members giving time in hospitals and schools when needed and serving the annual blood-mobile.

So we may well be proud of our Red Cross chapter, not only as an exemplary service organization, but also as another symbol of the spirit at Sharon High.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS Adds Service To Proficiency

The Audio-Visual Aids Club not only affords its members the chance to become proficient in the operation of many types of electrical equipment, but also the chance to serve their school. The members run the familiar 16 mm sound classroom projectors, record players, tape recorders, and slide projectors, as well as performing many behind the scenes activities—operating the P. A. system, the auditorium and stage lighting and sound, and the lighting in the gym—at assemblies, the prom, the John Jay lectures, town movies, and at the yearly Town Meeting. Students interested in the ever expanding field of science find an outlet for this interest in Sharon's science club. Under the direction of Mr. Davenport, the members meet once a week to conduct experiments in such fields as chemistry, biology, and physics, beyond what they accomplish within the school science curriculum. Each member has the opportunity to delve as deeply as he likes, into the field of his choice, either for sheer pleasure or to work toward advanced placement in higher education.

THE CREATIVE WRITING CLUB

Mrs. Katherine Norwood, as advisor, provides the members of the Creative Writing Club with insruction in the elements of good writing. Some of the members are working toward careers involving writing, others merely for the satisfaction of having created something effective or beautiful or pleasant. But regardless of their individual goals, all the members work together on the main project of Sharon's literary year—the annual production of "The Quill." This involves, beyond original creative writing, a screening and polishing of materials submitted by the student body at large, and, of course, all the intricacies of school publication.

ART CLUB

Each week some twenty artists meet with Mrs. Dann to prove and develop their skills. These members of the Art Club begin with a program of progressively more difficult exercises, geared to their individual capabilities. In this way, they have the chance to work in a variety of mediums, from water colors and pastels to oils, as they become advanced students.

Often the interest which a student develops in art leads him to choose a career in an art field such as graphic design, interior decorating, or illustration—but, here again, the satisfaction born of creativity is a sufficient motive for many of these artists.

Musicians Cultivate Common Interest

A highlight on the spring assembly schedule is the performance of the Dance Band. This year the group's numbers included such favorites as "Night Train," "Maria," and "Tonight." Quality rather than quantity marks the band's success.

Making up the Dance Band are sixteen of Sharon High's most musically talented boys. This year, for the first time, they are under the leadership of Gerry Levine, an alumnus, and Bob Bule, both members of the Coast Guard Band. (Mr. Irving Shwartz, the originator of Sharon's Dance Band, is no longer teaching in Sharon,) The new leaders come up from the Coast Guard Academy every Thursday for rehearsals, and are doing a fine job with the band.

Through developing character much as activities do, and through maintaining physical fitness, participation in sports completes the effect of academics on student growth. The teamwork that underlies success in most sports is another manifestation of people working together; striving for victory in interscholastic competition another manifestation of working as part of a whole for the benefit of the whole—in this case, Sharon's standing both on the score pad and in the realm of good sportsmanship.

Beyond these things, athletic teams which compete interscholastically help more than any other single phase of school life to create a unified school body. The unified effort of spectators to cheer their teams to victory is often carried, in the form of school spirit, into the classroom and other scholastic activities.

One of our busiest and most respected clubs at Sharon High is Boys' Varsity. Working toward the general goal of promoting good sportsmanship and school spirit, the varsity members have begun and maintained institutions which are part and parcel of life at Sharon High, among them transportation to "away" games, our pep rallies, the annual Talent Show, their annual cake sales, the annual presentation of a varsity jacket to a faculty member to be honored, and their annual awards to an outstanding senior boy and to the athlete of the year. Beyond these things, the boys have accepted the responsibilities of selling tickets, monitoring, and selling cokes at our basketball games.

Any funds the varsity boys raise go to purposes as fine as those of the club itself—a donation to the scholarship fund, and the purchase of all the athletic equipment donated to the school by the club.

Enthusiasm, Skill

Under the close supervision of Coach Blanchon, the 1962 Rebels had the most rewarding season in our soccer team's four-year history. Unbeaten and untied throughout the regular season, our South Shore Soccer Association Champs went on to become semi-finalists in the Eastern Massachusetts Tourney. Three new precedents were set this year when a Junior Varsity team was formed, with Mr. Coviello as coach, a citizen's booster committee organized to honor the Varsity and coach for their outstanding sportsmanship, and Coach Blanchon showered (fully clothed!) for his undefeated season.

This year's Sharon High School Varsity Basketball team, following in the footsteps of our Varsity Soccer team, was the second squad to finish its regular season undefeated, and win the Hockamock League title. The perfect season brought us into the semi-finals at Boston Gardens, where Plymouth inflicted our first loss. The Jay Vee squad upheld its fine record, too—winning twelve of its sixteen games.

On top of their sports ability, the boys' continually fine record of team work and good sportsmanship is a tribute to Coach Davenport ana to the tradition of Sharon High.

CHEERLEADERS

Miss Haley, Advisor

Since Sharon High's first basketball team played its first game, our cheerleaders have been essential in promoting school spirit by unifying the spectators in spurring our teams to victory. This year was no exception, as our four senior and three junior varsity cheerleaders, headed by Linda Buckman, worked enthusiastically. The cheerleaders altered old cheers, arranging them with new, energtic movements, and formulated new ones with vitality and spontaneity as guides.

Just as we hope that next year's cheerleaders will be as great a source of inspiration to the team and spectators as this year's, we hope, too, that the spectators will continue to be as responsive as they have been, and as is necessary to complete the effect of our cheerleaders' interest and perseverence.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Under the leadership of Miss Mueller, the Gladiators showed themselves to have a great sense of sportsmanship and organized teamwork. These qualities were displayed with each and every team they confronted. Although experiencing a disappointing season, the girls continued to fight hard and strong. They spent many exhausting, but worthwhile days after school improving their skills and formulating new techniques.

It may well be said, then, that Sharon's 1963 Gladiators exemplified some of the most important aspects of sports—a wonderful sense of sportsmanship, of team work, and of "never say die!"

Gymnasts Emphasize Physical Fitness

The boys and girls of Sharon High keep right in step with the new emphasis on physical fitness through the Boys' and Girls' Gymnastics Clubs and the girls' Modern Jazz Group. These young clubs are continually seeking new and higher accomplishments. The girls obtained two new pieces this year, uneven parallel bars and a balance beam; the boys have a new high bar. Setting themselves against the best of competition, our gymnastics clubs this year sent teams to the state gymnastics meet. The Modern Jazz Group, a new addition to Sharon High's clubs, formed two sections advanced and beginners, the advanced students teaching the beginners. The big accomplishment of the girls this year was the invitational gymnastics workshop they held, which was attended by over 300 girls.

Mr. Hall and Miss Mueller have done a wonderful job at Sharon High creating interest and accomplishment in these new and quickly expanding groups.
